

Brose among Europe top 500 employers

Coburg (19. June 2009).

Automotive supplier Brose is one of the top 500 employers in Europe. This is the outcome of the "Europe's 500 – Trendence Graduate Barometer 2009" survey published by the independent research institute in collaboration with Manager Magazin.

It is the first time this survey has been conducted in this form and it is the most comprehensive of its kind. It compiles the results of 22 national surveys that evaluated the employer preferences of a total of 200,000 students shortly before their final exams. The engineering scientists ranked the Brose Group 267th place.

The survey provides internationally operating companies with an objective view of graduates' preferences and expectations.

It also helps assess in detail the characteristics of the different markets.

In the national Trendence survey 2008/09 conducted among 18,000 business administration and engineering students at 108 national universities, Brose was able to move up to 69th position among the top 100 employers for engineers.

In another survey of the most attractive automotive employers 2008/09 conducted by the CRF research institute, Brose ranked 5th.
