

The Detroit Free Press Names Brose a Winner of the Detroit Top Workplaces 2020 Award

Auburn Hills, Mich. (01. November 2020) has been awarded a Top Workplaces 2020 honor by The Detroit Free Press. The list is based solely on employee feedback gathered through a third-party survey administered by employee engagement technology partner Energage, LLC. The anonymous survey uniquely measures 15 drivers of engaged cultures that are critical to the success of any organization: including alignment, execution, and connection, just to name a few.

“In times of great change, it is more important than ever to maintain a connection among employees,” said Eric Rubino, Energage CEO. “When you give your employees a voice, you come together to navigate challenges and shape your path forward based on real-time insights into what works best for your organization. The Top Workplaces program can be that positive outcome your company can rally around in the coming months to celebrate leadership and the importance of maintaining an employee-focused culture, even during challenging times.”

“2020 has been a year like no other. COVID forced us to redefine what a workplace is,” says Wilm Uhlenbecker, President Brose North America. “It made us call on the deep values of our corporate culture to keep our people connected and engaged. This makes this recognition even more significant and powerful.” The Brose DNA is firmly woven by employees whose engagement, skills and drive lead the company to success. Our company culture has been carefully cultivated and protected over the course of a century-long history. Looking ahead, Brose North America will continue its commitment to a safer, more inclusive and equitable workplace for all employees.
