The Brose Group

Brose is the fourth-largest family-owned automotive supplier. Every second new car worldwide is equipped with at least one Brose product. The company's intelligent solutions for vehicle access and interiors provide greater comfort and flexibility. Innovative concepts for thermal management increase efficiency and contribute to environmental and climate protection. Brose's systems understanding enables new functions in all kinds of vehicles – whether on four or two wheels.

Including the joint venture Brose Sitech, the company employs 30,000 people at around 70 locations in 25 countries. For 2022, the Brose Group expects a turnover of more than 7 billion euros.

These attributes have been hallmarks of our family-owned company's success since it was founded over 110 years ago. Our independence and financial strength enable us to focus on the longterm impact of our activities – for the good of the company and its employees.

Other attributes that speak for Brose: our value-based corporate culture to which the owners, managers and employees are committed; being owned by a family that puts the company's welfare ahead of its own personal interests and a relationship of trust between the workforce and leadership – all key pillars on which we base our unified, cohesive actions.

The difference we make

Challenges such as autonomous driving, e-mobility, connected vehicles and components and future usage concepts related to car sharing require fresh ways of thinking.

Our capabilities in the electrification and digital connectivity of our systems offer customers an entirely new experience when accessing, entering and exiting vehicles and in the flexibilization of the vehicle interior. We will focus much more on the functional interaction between components and systems in the future instead of individual parts.

Your next step

As an experienced specialist or manager you're not satisfied with past achievements.

Open up and explore new opportunities, further develop your sense of responsibility and satisfy your desire to accomplish even more.

From idea to innovation – Shaping the future of mobility

Whether mechatronic systems for vehicle doors, liftgates and seats or electric motors and electronics – our innovative products are in high demand around the globe.

They enhance vehicle comfort, safety and efficiency. Every second new vehicle worldwide is equipped with at least one Brose product.

For specialists

As a specialist you prefer to work as part of an international network, are a team player and use these traits to contribute to the global success of the Brose Group.

We expect a lot, but we offer a great deal in return: an attractive package of social and additional benefits, modern working hours and workplace concepts and comprehensive education and training opportunities are a matter of course here at Brose. But above all, we offer you longterm career prospects with plenty of personal freedom.

Step-by-step growth

Regardless of the career path, comprehensive support ensures step-by-step growth – based on how you use your personal freedom and professional knowledge and skills. Each step brings more complex tasks and greater responsibility. Once you have embarked on a specific career path at Brose, you can still explore other avenues.

Our career path concept is flexible. You can change to a specialist career path after working in a management job, for instance. Or vice versa.

For managers

As a manager you think and act like an entrepreneur to help shape the future of our company. You are responsible for your decisions and outcomes. This clear understanding of leadership enables you to work in an imaginative, results-oriented, pragmatic and decisive way.

You can inspire your employees and motivate them to do great work to further our corporate group's objectives. As a role model you are aware of how to achieve a balance between challenging and supporting your employees.

Career paths: as varied as the assignment

We offer you the greatest possible flexibility in planning your career. Whether as a thoughtful manager, seasoned expert or interdisciplinary project manager: based on your professional and personal suitability you decide which career path at Brose suits you best and brings out your strengths.

This ensures top employees can also achieve top performance.

New prospects

Alongside our career path concept, we also offer job rotation to help employees build skills and share knowledge within our corporate group.

Systematic job swaps enable you to share your experience and broaden your horizons – in a different function or at a new location. This shift in perspective helps increase our innovative power, promotes international collaboration and prepares you for new tasks that demand even more responsibility.

Creative minds – join our team

Many qualified and experienced professionals have chosen Brose. Like us, they value performance and competence instead of hierarchies and bureaucracy.

Would you like to achieve new goals and make a difference? Then bring your ideas to life at Brose. We welcome people with drive, team spirit and stamina who know what they want and are eager to demonstrate their abilities.
