

ADEG quality award for Brose in Spain

Employers' association ADEG awards the Brose plant in Sta. Margarida, Spain, with the Award for Quality (from left): Xavier Cardona, Chairman of ADEG, Josep Huguet, Minister for Industry and Innovation in Catalonia, Brose General Manager Adolfo Varillas, and Jordi Baijet, Mayor of Sitges, Spain.

Sta. Margarida/Coburg (21. April 2010)

On April 16, the Brose production site in Sta. Margarida, Spain, was presented with the Quality Award from the ADEG, the regional employers' association.

ADEG awarded the prize in recognition of the Spanish plant's exemplary performance - its consistently high quality, its model corporate culture and the excellent image that Brose S.A. enjoys in the region.

Brose General Manager Adolfo Varillas accepted the award in Sitges from Josep Huguet, the Industry and Innovation Minister of Catalonia, along with Xavier Cardona, the Chairman of ADEG, and the Mayor of Sitges, Jordi Baijet.

"This award gives me great pleasure, because it documents the significance which we have acquired since our establishment in the region 22 years ago. At the same time, this award is an indicator that our company is perceived as an establishment that has the means to deliver perfect quality in all areas," said Managing Director Adolfo Varillas. "This award is an incentive for us to remain steadfast in our efforts and not just be content with our achievements," Varillas concluded.